

HOME ECONOMICS

Study of these modules enables a critical understanding of the issues that affect the individual, households and family. An appreciation of the complexity of the relationship between these issues in order to meet human need in a contemporary, changing and economically diverse society is developed throughout the course.

This one year course undertakes studies in two units:

AS Unit G001 Society and Health

- Demography
- Family and Society
- Key issues for society
- Environmental Issues
- Social issues

AS Unit G002 Resource Management

- Resources
- Food Provision
- The selection and purchase of food and household goods
- Food preparation and cooking equipment
- Food safety and hygiene

These are both externally marked and are both worth 50%. Each unit has a one and half hour examination.
